DEMOLITION TO GIVE TOWN A FRESH START

West Gate shops to be cleared away as part of regeneration scheme

Gemma Gardner
gemma.gardner@hertsexnews.co.uk

PLANS have been drawn up for the demolition of a number of shop units at the western end of Harlow town centre.

The buildings earmarked to go in West Gate include Gate House, the former HSBC building and the former Harlow Star office. The units, which share the same owner as the Harvey Centre, cover an area of 1,575sq m.

The work is planned to take place in two phases with demolition of the HSBC building and adjoining bridge forming the first phase. The second will see the demolition of the shop units facing West Gate.

Vacant

A statement accompanying the planning application submitted to Harlow Council said: "The application concerns land at West Gate, Harlow town centre and proposes the demolition of the vacant HSBC building and bridge at West Gate to facilitate future redevelopment."

"The advanced demolition of the existing building and the clearance of the site will assist in the delivery of regeneration of this area."

The council recently revealed ambitious plans to regenerate and modernise the town centre, including moving Harlow Central Library, employing a town

BIG PLANS: The parade of shops to be demolished at West Gate, Harlow. INSET: Cllr Tony Durcan centre manager and improving Broad Walk.

"We need a fresh start for our town centre," said Cllr Tony Durcan, portfolio holder for regeneration and enterprise.

"Parts of Harlow's town centre are in need of regeneration, with ageing buildings and public spaces, and we know the northern part of the town centre needs revitalising."

The authority made the announcement shortly after the launch of a Save Harlow Town Centre campaign. Harlow MP Robert Halfon has also called for the urgent regeneration of the town centre.

"Urgent regeneration and works need to be done," said Mr Halfon. "Personally I would like to knock down the concrete car parks, rebuild the Market Square and see lots of cafes move in. I think it could resemble Covent Garden."

The planning application was being processed by the council as the Star went to press. It will be available for public consultation before a decision is made.

The Star contacted the owners of the Harvey Centre for a comment, but had not received a reply by the time we went to press.

Nan's engagement ring 'stolen' from her finger

Family believe it was taken while pensioner was in hospital bed

Gemma Gardner

gemma.gardner@hertsessexnews.co.uk

A 93-YEAR-OLD grandmother had her engagement ring stolen from her finger as she lay on a hospital bed.

Enid Brown, who had worn the ruby and diamond engagement ring for the past 70 years, was admitted to Princess Alexandra Hospital in Harlow after suffering a cracked rib and other injuries in a fall.

Her granddaughter Zoe Brown, 41, of Hertford, says she was wearing the ring, given to her by her late husband, when they visited on Monday but not on their return the following day.

Miss Brown, who works in Welwyn, said: "The ring has gone missing between Monday night and Tuesday morning."

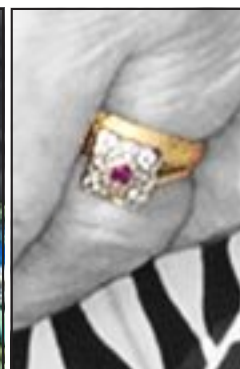

"She had not taken it off in 70 years. We always thought it would have to be cut off. I couldn't believe it had gone."

"You're cross because you don't think that when they're in hospital and so poorly that something like this could happen. It's very upsetting for her."

Miss Brown said her almost-blind grandmother, who lives in Hoddesdon, felt someone "tugging on her finger" but could not remember anything else. She was being treated on the hospital's stroke ward.

"She felt someone taking it off her finger but she is bedridden and can't see," said Miss Brown, "Understandably she thought it was the nurse putting it somewhere safe."

The family has reported the matter to the police and are now calling for procedures to be put in place to stop other vulnerable elderly patients becoming victims.

"It isn't about criticising the hospital. This is about making sure it doesn't happen to anybody else," she said. "If it means that new guidelines need to be put in place then it should be done as a matter of urgency."

A spokeswoman for PAH said it was sorry to hear about such cases and takes any allegation of lost property very seriously by reporting them to security for investigation.

"The trust would also encourage the patient to notify the police of the loss," she said.

"The hospital advises patients of the best way to look after their personal belongings while staying in our care. Our staff always encourages the patient's relatives or friends to take home any unnecessary items of value with the patient's permission."

"Each ward has a patient valuables book which records any patient's valuables including those that have gone home for safekeeping with friends and relatives."

If you have information about the whereabouts of the ring, email star@hertsessexnews.co.uk.

Feathered friends helping residents gain confidence

A FLUTTER of newborn chicks provided some therapeutic fun for adults with learning disabilities in a supported living scheme in Harlow.

Residents of Livingstone House, in Potter Street, welcomed the 10 bundles of fluff for two weeks to look after.

Sean Oliver-Fitch, a support worker Livingstone House, said: "Whilst the chicks were here we saw residents engage more with activities as a result and some of them really came out of their shell."

"It was something different for them to do and it gave them a chance to have some first-hand contact with animals, which they loved."

The residents at the house run by Sanctuary Supported Living had the opportunity to feed the chicks and keep them occupied when the cage was being cleaned out.

When the time came to leave the scheme, two chicks were adopted by a contractor working at Livingstone House.

Those remaining moved to petting farm Pets' Corner at Harlow Town Park, where Livingstone House's residents are able to periodically visit.

Family praises nursery's help with cancer tot

Parents also grateful for charity's support

William Mata

william.mata@hertsexnews.co.uk

THE family of a Harlow toddler diagnosed with a rare form of cancer have praised the support of a charity and staff at his nursery.

Jacob Wright, who lives with mum Charlene, dad Richard and baby sister Alba in Foldcroft, Harlow, is now partially sighted as a result of the retinoblastoma and needs extensive therapy.

Retinoblastoma is almost exclusively found in children under five and in some cases can be life-limiting.

"Finding out the news of his condition was awful," said Charlene, 30. "When he was eight weeks old he did not really look at anything in focus and later we took him to accident and emergency to find out he had retinoblastoma."

"We were referred to the Royal London Hospital and Great Ormond Street Hospital. They said he had tumours in both of his eyes, it was horrendous."

Remove

She continued: "On a scale of A to E with E being the worst, doctors graded his right eye as an E and had to remove it. He has had six rounds of chemotherapy to treat his left eye. Since then we have been taking him back to the hospital every four to six weeks for various treatments."

Jacob is approaching his third birthday and over the next few days Raindrops Day Nursery, which he attends, will be holding a number of fundraising events in aid of the Childhood Eye Cancer Trust.

The nursery in Harberts Road, Harlow, will hold a fun day and raffle tomorrow (Friday) while on Sunday car owners can take their vehicles along from midday-4pm

'GOOD PROGRESS':

Bringing up a young child with a serious illness can be a struggle but Charlene is optimistic for the future.

"He is slowly getting better," she said. "He had quite a big relapse in February and needed to have cryotherapy at the Royal London Hospital and intra-arterial chemotherapy at Great Ormond Street."

"Jacob has to go under a general anaesthetic every time and we tell him he is going into his special sleep and he will be injected with Captain America's apple juice."

"The cancer will slow down when he gets to five years old as his eyes will change."

"His progress has been really good and also at nursery and his speech is developing."

She said: "He can function and keep up with his peers. I've noticed his vision can deteriorate for a few weeks after treatment and he bumps into things a bit more, but then I'm very clumsy so maybe he just gets that from me!"

Charlene added: "Raindrops are so supportive. Jacob loves going and his key worker Jodie is fantastic. It is overwhelming they are doing all this."

"The Childhood Eye Cancer Trust do great work and when Jacob was first diagnosed they were supportive in looking for places where he could get treatment. They provide a unique

ALL TOGETHER NOW: The band plays for Edith Hurst

Big strings surprise is sprung on Edith at 103

A UKELELE band entertained a great-grandmother from Harlow when she celebrated her 103rd birthday.

Edith Hurst, who lives at the Partridge Care Centre in Partridge Road, joined in with the band whose performance was a surprise present from her family.

Mrs Hurst's daughter Lorraine Buckley, 70, said: "I think she is quite surprised that she is 103 as she does not feel that old."

Tough

"I asked her if she feels any different and she replied that she did not feel any different from the day before. She is a tough lady and she does not let things get her down."

Mrs Hurst was born on April 14, 1913 and grew up in Walthamstow. For much of her life she worked as a secretary and during the Second World War she served as a fire watcher.

She was married to husband Jim and for 30 years the couple lived in Zimbabwe (formerly Rhodesia) before returning to the UK, settling in Ongar before moving to Harlow.

'I FEEL NO DIFFERENT':

Her husband died 25 years ago and Mrs Hurst, who has three grandchildren and four great grandchildren, moved to the care home shortly before her 100th birthday.

Mrs Buckley, who lives in Sawbridgeworth, added: "She worked all of her life and has always loved singing. She was even joining in with the band."

"I think she had a wonderful time, everybody really enjoyed it."

A heavy price if we opt out

SIR, Philip Powell is correct about my identity (Letters, April 14). I am immensely proud to have been the MEP for Central London for 15 years which enabled me to work with MEPs from other EU states on issues of importance for my constituents and other British and European citizens.

Mr Powell and Chris Staunton (Letters, April 7) are totally wrong to disregard the vital role played by the EU after 1945 in healing the bitter antagonisms between Germany, France, Britain, Belgium and other states which, after 1918, led to the Second World War. NATO had an entirely different purpose.

The EU rules and restraints they reject include those which have led to cleaner beaches, limits on working time, maternity and parental leave, minimum paid holidays etc which helps explain TUC opposition to leaving. Such rules are not imposed by remote bureaucrats but have to be debated and approved by elected national governments and the elected European Parliament.

In any case, EU laws only amount to 13.2 per cent of legislation passed by our Parliament.

If we leave the EU, like Norway we shall still have to pay and observe the same rules to maintain our exports but without the right to help shape those rules. An estimated 3.5 million British jobs depend on exports to Europe and the CBI estimates that leaving the EU could blow a £100m hole in the UK economy and cost us up to 950,000 jobs. It could also lead to Scotland leaving us. Is it sensible to risk all this?

I recognise faults in the EU which we should fight to reform but we need to remain a member. Humanity is facing great threats today, including devastating climate change, which can only be met by international co-operation. Britain will pay a heavy price if we opt out.

Taxpayer is funding EU

SIR, I have just read a leaflet

READER'S PHOTO

■ This photo was taken by Emily Leonard, of Rushes Mead, Harlow, last month. "I was walking home with my dog from a lovely walk," she writes. "I turned to cross the road and saw a pair of eyes looking straight at me from a grass verge. It was a sparrowhawk which flew into an alley and I followed it. I could hear a lot of noise and realised that the sparrowhawk was killing a starling. As the noise stopped, the sparrowhawk flew into a nearby garden with its kill. I feel this is raw nature that I was able to catch on camera."

■ If you have a photo you have taken in or around Harlow which you would like to see featured in the Star, email a high resolution copy in JPEG format, along with a brief description of where and when it was taken, to star@hertsessexnews.co.uk. Please remember to include your name and address.

from one of Labour's candidates standing in Harlow in the forthcoming local elections which boasts of EU funding backing local enterprises.

Let's get this clear, Britain does not receive funding from the EU. The EU gets funding from Britain, from the British taxpayer.

Britain funds the EU to the tune of £50m per day, so the next time someone tells you that the EU has funded a massive £1bn to major projects throughout the region you can set them straight in that it is Britain that funds the EU a massive £1bn every three weeks.

Labour needs to get a grip

SIR, What chance of positive representation can the people of Harlow expect in the forthcoming local council elections?

After reading a leaflet from the Labour candidate in my ward, I question the purpose of voting for anyone with such little understanding of the EU.

It seems that the Labour Party believes that the EU has funded major projects throughout the region. Get a grip; it is Britain that funds the EU.

But then again, we have come to expect the same level of incompetence in local government.

Left angry by bus changes

SIR, Hardworking people in Pinnacles who rely on buses have been screwed over.

A while ago new systems were installed on buses to record figures but nothing was entered for people with weekly and monthly passes.

Surely the people that are buying these should be logged where they are going and how the passes are being used before new bus timetables are implemented.

Too late. They've now been implemented and have left a lot of people angry and confused

Second class mail service

SIR, I wonder if any Star readers are having problems with the delivery of their mail as I refuse to believe it only happens to me.

I receive my neighbours' post and they receive mine. The postmen pay no attention when delivering what are obvious data and security letters.

I was horrified when a lady knocked and gave me my letters. One had my bank's name on it which was my statement and the other was a letter from the DWP which contained all my personal information.

I've had a signed recorded delivery parcel which wasn't for my address. Even when we pay extra for a secure delivery they still get it wrong.

I have missed hospital and DWP appointments because I haven't received the letters and online orders that haven't arrived.

I am fed up with the unprofessional service. Their apologies mean nothing because the service never improves. Shame on you Royal Mail.

Privatisation of education

SIR, Over the Easter break Harlow+Epping Forest NUT had five delegates at the national conference in Brighton. Many Star readers will have seen that we voted to ballot for strike action as the Government is refusing to negotiate over proposed legislation.

The key feature of the White Paper is the forced academisation of all schools with the format of this academisation being in multi academy trusts (MATs). The NUT opposes this completely.

There is absolutely no evidence that academies provide a better education for young people. Indeed, many academies have been less successful than the local authority schools they replaced. Even more worryingly MATs need no parents, teachers or local representatives on their boards and can be based miles away from the schools that they control.

In Harlow we already have BMAT, ATT, NET and Reach2 MATs, with more to follow. While BMAT is Harlow-based, it already controls a school in Stansted, ATT is based in Birmingham, NET in Buckinghamshire and Reach2 in Burton upon Trent.

This complete lack of local accountability is another step towards the privatisation that the NUT was warning us about when the academies programme began. Unanswerable, unaccountable management of children's education with a reduced teaching/teacher support force on reduced wages and much poorer conditions of service.

This development in the privatisation of education must be halted; it cannot possibly benefit the young people of Harlow.

Even Conservative councillors around the country and some Conservative MPs are now supporting Labour, Liberal Democrat and Green opposition. Unfortunately this does not include Harlow MP Robert Halfon.

Parents, residents, teachers, grandparents, teaching assistants, education support workers, students – indeed everyone who cares about education in Harlow – need to urge the Government, and Mr Halfon in particular, to reject this mad, dangerous, undemocratic and excessively wastefully expensive proposal.

Murray Sackwild, general secretary
Harlow+Epping Forest NUT

Bay numbers are not clear

SIR, Further to your story about the driver who was fined in the Water Gardens car park (Star, April 14), I was also subject to this as I'm sure many others have been.

It is Smart Parking's responsibility to ensure the numbers in this car park are clear and in most instances they are not.

Can I suggest anyone who gets one of these tickets because of genuine error provides a picture of the number to show it is faded and also produces the refund ticket to show that there has been no loss of earnings for the company.

Taking this matter further when such evidence is provided would be fruitless.

Perfect time for a clearout

SIR, I want to thank your readers who have been giving their spring cleaning real meaning this year by donating items to their local British Heart Foundation shop as they declutter their homes.

I'm a big fan of keeping the home spick and span and this is the perfect time to have a good old clean up and clearout. Every unwanted item donated is hugely appreciated by your local BHF shop and each jumper, CD, wardrobe and book helps in the fight for every heartbeat.

With cardiovascular disease causing over 14,800 deaths last year across the east of England alone, the need for vital heart research has never been greater.

If you are yet to get out your feather duster and start spring cleaning, there's no need to worry as BHF shops are always in need of stock to fill their rails and so would love your unwanted items all year round.

It's also a great time to take advantage of their free collection service to make decluttering and donating completely hassle free. For more information please visit bhf.org.uk.

Mum's anger at missing out on school choices

Daughter offered different primary to brothers

William Mata

william.mata@hertsexnews.co.uk

AN angry mother has criticised the primary school placement process after missing out on her first two choices for the second year running.

Essex County Council revealed this week that 92 per cent of children due to start school in September had been allocated either their first or second choice of schools.

Alessia Morena, 27, of Potter Street, had hoped her daughter Amelia would join her older brothers – Harry, eight, and Max, five – at Henry Moore Primary.

But her hopes were dashed when she received notification this week that Amelia had been offered a place at at Harlowbury Primary, in Old Harlow, instead.

"I am stressed out about this because I am a single parent who does not drive and this could mean I have to walk 45 minutes twice a day," she said. "It is so frustrating."

Choice

Ms Morena, who suffers from health problems, is one of around 2,000 parents across the county to miss out on their first and second choice of school.

Parents unhappy with the school their children have been allocated can appeal to an independent panel or request a place at an alternative primary which still has vacancies.

"I am especially angry about this as I had to go through a lengthy appeal process last year to get Max into Henry Moore," said Ms Morena. "I will appeal again but it is a very stressful process."

"The fact that I have to do it at is appalling. I have health problems and notes from doctors saying that I should avoid walking."

APPALLED: Alessia Morena with sons Harry and Max and daughter Amelia

Primary school placements

NINE out of 10 children in Essex have been offered a place at their first or second choice of primary school.

Figures released by Essex County Council on Monday show that 87.4 per cent of children due to start in September have been offered their parents' first preference. A further 6.7 per cent have been offered their second, meaning 94 per cent have been offered one of their top two preferences.

Cllr Ray Gooding, cabinet member for education and lifelong learning, said: "The pressure on primary school places has increased considerably in recent years but our investment has meant we can continue to meet the rising demand. "This achievement is also testament to the hard work of admissions staff, schools and those involved in planning expansions."

This year's figures

- 87.4% of parents have been offered their first preference
- 6.68% of parents have been offered their second preference
- 2.39% of parents have been offered their third preference
- 0.77% of parents have been offered their fourth preference
- 2.76% of parents could not be offered any of their preferences and were offered a place at the nearest school with a place available

Last year's figures

- 86.7% of parents were offered their first preference
- 6.6% of parents were offered their second preference
- 2.43% of parents were offered their third preference
- 1.18% of parents were offered their fourth preference
- 3.09% of parents could not be offered any of their preferences and were offered a place at the nearest school with a place available

Bishop's delight after plans for community centre are approved

PLANS to build a new community centre in Epping have been given the green light by councillors.

The Heart of Epping project will see the two-storey building built on the site of St John's House next to St John's Church.

It will offer meeting rooms, a community hall, cafe, toilets and kitchen.

The Bishop of Barking, the Right Rev Peter Hill, said: "This will greatly enhance the church's capacity to offer comfortable and modern facilities for the benefit of the community in which it is already a hub of life and activity as well as a place of Christian worship."

"We are thrilled that this important step is complete and we are motivated to see the building work begin as soon as we reach our £1m target for phase one, the construction of the building. Industrious work continues with local people, charitable trusts and our fundraiser to achieve this goal."

Rev Canon Geoffrey Connor, rector of St John's, added: "We have a vision of working together with other groups and our local authorities to provide a community hub centred on the St John's Road area which will truly become the Heart of Epping, offering first class facilities for the communal and spiritual life of our town."

Groups given share of community cash

Three Harlow organisations awarded county funding for projects

Ken Morley

star@hertssexnews.co.uk

THREE groups from Harlow have received a cash boost after receiving grants from the Essex County Council Millennium Fund and Chairman's Fund.

Harlow Arts Council, the Livewire Trust and the Berecroft Residents' Association were among 19 charities and voluntary organisations to share in grants totalling £74,768.

Harlow Arts Council received £2,500 towards the costs involved in organising this year's Harlow Festival while BRA was awarded £3,640 to support the role and work of part-time community wardens and help run football sessions for young people on the Berecroft estate.

The biggest sum – £5,000 – went to the Livewire Trust which will use the money for a summer theatre challenge for young people in Harlow.

Trust chairman Kieran Whelan said: "We are extremely grateful to receive this grant. The Livewire Theatre Challenge is an exciting and unique project in which young people from different schools and areas of the community come together to create an original, entertaining, issue based piece of theatre, over a two-week period during the summer holidays.

"This year we will work towards creating a performance that raises awareness of mental health issues."

Other Essex-based projects receiving support included those providing help to disadvantaged children, people who are homeless, advocacy for disabled people and a project helping migrants to integrate into their local community.

The Essex Millennium Fund and Chairman's Fund are managed by the Essex Community Foundation, an independent charitable trust.

ECF chief executive Caroline Taylor said: "A grant can be a lifeline for an organisation and we know that the voluntary sector needs substantial and prolonged investment in order to survive.

"Grants that are accessible, flexible and independently managed are an essential part of the local funding mix for any community organisation."

The presentation ceremony was held at the Essex Record Office and hosted by Essex County Council chairman Norman Hume.

Magistrate takes over as new High Sheriff of Essex

A SUCCESSFUL businesswoman and long-standing magistrate has been appointed the new High Sheriff of Essex.

Lorna Rolfe, who has lived in the county for more than 35 years after moving south from her native Scotland, is only the seventh woman to hold the office.

The High Sheriff is traditionally responsible for upholding the Queen's peace but in more recent times the emphasis has switched to crime prevention and community safety.

As well as being involved with the judiciary and the emergency services during her year in office, she will also be forging links with the voluntary sector, visiting local groups and organisations.

"There are so many really good people in Essex doing amazing and inspirational things, trying to make life better for others," she said. "As High Sheriff I will be very privileged to be able to see their activities first-hand and most importantly to hear people's stories."

"I am very much looking forward to meeting people of all generations who live and work in this exciting and hugely diverse county."

Mrs Rolfe lives in Great Chesterford with her husband Howard. They have three grown-up children, Alasdair, Lois and Sarah.

The role of High Sheriff is a Royal appointment which is self-funded and does not take money from the public purse.

Police revoke 86-year-old driver's licence after he fails an eye test

AN elderly driver who failed an eyesight test during a road safety operation covering Epping had his licence revoked by police.

Officers requested an urgent licence revocation from the DVLA after the 86-year-old man failed the test during last Wednesday's Operation Surround A Town, an on-going campaign to increase road safety and detect offenders using the roads.

The elderly man was stopped after officers became concerned about the manner of his driving.

Officers on motorcycles and in cars were used to intercept vehicles which were then taken to one of three stop-check sites.

Fifty-two drivers were dealt with for using a mobile phone behind the wheel and 75 for failing to wear a seatbelt. A total of 19 drivers were dealt with for speeding offences, three vehicles were seized because their drivers were not insured and two had number plates which did not comply with legal requirements.

Water Gardens pays back fine of elderly driver who mistook parking bay number

AN elderly driver who was issued with a penalty ticket after entering the wrong bay number in a car park pay machine is to have her money refunded.

Mary Farrell, 78, of Threshers Bush, Harlow, was told she would have to pay a £60 fine after she mistook the figure one for a seven at a space at The Water Gardens. Mrs Farrell parked in 251 but thought it was 257.

Her family paid the penalty after their appeals to car park operators Smart Parking and the independent appeal service POPLA to have it quashed ended in failure.

But after the Star reported the story in last week's edition, the management of The Water Gardens has stepped in with an offer to refund the fine.

Centre manager Beryl Murphy, said: "I would like to say how disappointed I am that Mrs Farrell had a bad experience whilst visiting The Water Gardens.

"We understand, on occasion, customers enter the incorrect bay number or incorrect level where they are parked into the pay machine. This error will automatically alert the system that the customer has not paid for the parking bay and a penalty notice will be issued.

"However, errors of this nature can be dealt with quickly, without fuss, by the centre management team. If Mrs Farrell contacts me I will arrange for her fee to be repaid."

This week Mrs Farrell said: "It is very nice of them and I feel vindicated. I think the fact they have paid it back to me in this case might help people with similar difficulties in the future."

Thriller! Jackson fan Rory is a hit with BGT judges

Simon Cowell leads praise for performance

William Mata

william.mata@hertsessexnews.co.uk

A MICHAEL Jackson tribute artist from Harlow is hoping to moonwalk his way to the top after impressing judges on a TV talent show.

Rory Jackson appeared on ITV2's Britain's Got More Talent on Saturday when he performed a dance routine to the King of Pop's hit Billie Jean.

His performance earned him praise from judges Simon Cowell, Alesha Dixon, David Walliams and Amanda Holden.

The 30-year-old, whose real name is Rory Prescott, said this week: "It has been a crazy few days. I have been getting so many messages and I have even been signing autographs.

"People may be surprised to hear I was nervous before the show as I am a professional. However, I was putting my career on the line by doing this.

"I have been so busy touring the past couple of weeks I have not had chance to stop and take it all in but people have been in touch to say they will vote for me."

Rory has performed his two-hour show all around the country.

His first round audition for Britain's Got Talent was held in Birmingham earlier this year.

After watching his performance, Simon Cowell said: "If I had been watching from 100ft away I would have believed that was Michael Jackson. This was a really well deserved four yeses."

Fellow judge Alesha Dixon told Rory: "I was at a Bad concert and I think you did a really good job. You should be proud of yourself."

Judges will now decide if he is to feature in the second round where a public vote will influence the result.

Rory, who grew up in Spinning Wheel Mead and went to Brays Grove School, said: "My agency in Wales was contacted by Britain's Got Talent producers who were looking for contestants. I was the first name they put forward.

"I have been dancing in the style of Michael Jackson for years and I really wanted to put him in the spotlight again. I have met lots of people who were not even alive when he was touring."

He added: "Whatever the outcome of Britain's Got Talent I have decided I will take my show on a national tour so people can see more of me.

"If you're lucky you get three minutes on television."

Britain's Got More Talent host Stephen Mulhern asked him to dance for as long as he could before his appearance on stage.

Rory said: "It was an absolute pleasure as Stephen is a lovely guy very encouraging.

"I am not a very confident person speaking on stage and I get a bit nervous which I think is a parallel I have with Michael Jackson.

"I come alive when I am dancing and doing my thing."

Busy bees plant seeds to watch grow in months ahead

TODDLERS spruced up their Harlow nursery's back yard as part of National Gardening Week.

Children at Busy Bees, in The Greenway, planted seeds which they will watch grow over the coming months.

Nursery manager Kim Shinn said: "The outside world can be a really exciting place for children to explore so we want to make our garden as inviting and interactive as possible."

The children also took part in a range of activities suggested by The Royal Horticultural Society.

"Involving children in planting the seeds helps to spark their interest from an early age and hopefully encourage a lifelong love of the outdoors," said Ms Shinn.

"We are already partnered with The Wildlife Trusts for Busy Bees Goes Wild, a seasonal scrapbook challenge. Things like National Gardening Week help to reinforce how magical nature can be."

Brave Tommy wins child courage award

Teen fighting cancer receives honour at London ceremony

Gemma Gardner

gemma.gardner@hertsessexnews.co.uk

A TEENAGER battling cancer has been recognised for his bravery at the London Children of Courage Awards.

Tommy Kent, 15, who lives in Harlow, was presented with the award for outstanding bravery by BBC presenters Bill Turnbull and Steph McGovern during a glittering ceremony at the InterContinental hotel in London.

Tommy and his parents, Andy and Karen, attended the event along with Debbie Pezzani, chief executive and founder of Broxbourne-based Teens Unite, and the charity's co-ordinator Lauren Thomas who have supported him during his fight against cancer.

At the age of 13, Burnt Mill Academy pupil Tommy was diagnosed with Leukaemia. He was transferred to University College London Hospital and endured six months of intense chemotherapy.

The teenager also had to take steroids which effected his muscles and left him short of breath just walking up the stairs.

Over time Tommy lost his hair and as a result of his treatment his face became swollen as a result of the steroids he was taking.

He underwent a series of urgent blood transfusions and experienced such a dramatic weight loss that at one point he had to use a feeding tube.

Tommy has now completed his intense treatment but continues to take daily oral chemotherapy tablets.

Courage

Teens Unite nominated him for the London Children of Courage Awards, which were sponsored by St James's Place Wealth Management.

Ms Pezzani said: "As with all of the young people Teens Unite supports, Tommy's story is truly inspirational."

"We are so proud of how far he has come and what he continues to achieve at such a young age."

"We have such a remarkable difference in his confidence, self-esteem and general well-being over the last year."

Tourette's can be so isolating, a dog will help change his life

Mum's bid to raise £3.5k for therapy pet

Gemma Gardner

gemma.gardner@hertsessexnews.co.uk

IT'S a disorder often treated as a joke but, for young Sam Howard, Tourette's syndrome is no laughing matter.

Tics affect every aspect of the eight-year-old's life from causing him pain to stopping him sleeping.

Now, his devoted mother Toni Howard is planning to swim the equivalent of the English Channel to buy him a life-changing therapy dog.

"Life is a constant challenge for Sam as his tics affect every area of his life," explained the 37-year-old. "He's a tough kid and sees it as a gift, but sometimes he can really hurt himself. A therapy dog would be life-changing."

Toni first noticed quirks in her son's behaviour when he was only three and a half.

But despite repeated trips to doctors, it took 10 months before the family received an answer. Three years ago he was diagnosed with Tourette's syndrome, OCD and anxiety disorder.

Blinking

"Sam was three and a half when he started blinking rapidly and grinding his teeth. My husband's sister has Tourette's so we knew what it was straight away what it was," said Toni.

The neurological disorder which affects about one in 100 children was to change his life and that of everyone in his family.

"More and more tics came, and that just went on and on," explained Toni. "Sam had star jump tics, touching people tics and, one of the worst, holding his breath tics. That one was really scary and fortunately did not last long. "I remember it happened at school and his lips turned blue. It's hard trying to explain that his 'fight or flight instinct' won't kick in.

"At the moment Sam has a cold so it's bringing on his cough tics."

But when Sam, who lives with his mum, dad Daniel Howard, 38, and brother Jesse, six, in Church Langley primary pupil does not tick any of the necessary boxes for the family to get an assistance dog from any charity.

Toni added: "We've tried everywhere and each time we were told 'maybe in 10 years we will be there' or 'we just don't know enough about Tourette's to be able to help'.

"We know that for Sam having the chance to own a therapy dog would be life changing. It would be a constant source of comfort and companionship. "Tourette's can be very isolating. It would be trained to distract him when he is very tippy, calm him when he is anxious and hopefully one day be assistance accredited and give Sam independence and confidence and maybe even go to secondary school with him."

Boxes

Toni, who works at Harlow Leisurezone, will swim 22 miles over two weeks to raise £3,500 to make the dream a reality.

She will complete the swim in four sessions over a two-week period between May 16 and May 25.

"I've started training," said Toni, who swam with Harlow Penguins when she was younger. "Sam is really proud and excited. He can't wait."

"We can't just get any dog, it has to be specially trained so it's always been a bit of a dream but we'd always said maybe one day. Getting a dog will be life-changing for him."

Family launch petition after 'assault' at kids play area

A CHILDS safety campaign started by the parents of a five-year-old girl allegedly sexually assaulted by a young boy at a play area is being backed by Harlow MP Robert Halfon.

The couple, who live in Harlow but cannot be named for legal reasons, claim the incident took place two weeks ago in a ball park at the Rye-assic Adventure Park in Hoddesdon.

The girl's father said he was shocked there was non register of people using the facility and called on the Government to make this mandatory.

"It was something I'd never thought about before this happened and I'm a dad," he said. "But on the day it happened, I was absolutely disgusted by the way it was dealt with."

He added that the family had been offered little support since the incident despite the effect on his daughter. They have now started an online petition and praised praised Mr Halfon for his support.

Security

Mr Halfon said: "The petition raises important security issues, and I am contacting the children's minister and relevant authorities to see what can be done to ensure all children are safeguarded."

A spokeswoman for Hertfordshire Constabulary confirmed the incident had been reported to police and was being investigated. However, because of the age of the children involved no criminal investigation will take place.

Rye-assic Park manager Trish Salter said: "Whilst we encourage our guests to make the most of our fun, relaxed and safe facility, I would like to point out that the staff here are not responsible for any child's behaviour on site. This is not a crèche."

"Ultimately, children remain the responsibility of the adults who bring them, at all times."

Booklist of titles on mental health for young people

A LIST of books aimed at teenagers wanting to understand more about mental health issues is now available from Harlow Library.

The Reading Well for Young People booklist features 35 titles dealing with subjects of common mental health conditions such as anxiety, depression, stress and eating disorders.

It also includes details of fiction titles exploring many of the issues experienced by young people such as bereavement, bullying, divorce and separation.

Cllr Anne Brown, Essex County Council's cabinet member for corporate, communities and customers, said: "Teenage years can often be a challenging and confusing period full of life-changing events."

"That is why we are very pleased to be supporting the Reading Well scheme which will give young people across the county the opportunity to find out more about some of the pressures they face, and learn about mental health and wellbeing."

Pair prepare to set off on 200-mile coast-to-coast walk for charity

TWO friends are in the final stages of preparations for a charity walk which will see them cross the country from the west to the east coast in just 12 days.

Matt Dixon, co-founder of Geoffrey Matthew Estates in Old Harlow, and Heath Greenall, chairman and managing director of car dealership chain Gates, will set off at the start of their Coast2Coast Challenge on Monday.

They will leave from St Bees in Cumbria and head to Robin Hood's Bay on the North Sea coast – a distance of almost 200 miles.

Their trek will take them through some of the UK's most picturesque landscapes in the Lake District, the Yorkshire Dales and the North Yorkshire Moors.

Walking up to 18 miles each day, they hope to reach their destination by May 7. And they are hoping to raise at least £12,000 for two charities – Macmillan Cancer Support and Cancer Research UK.

Matt, 44, of Puffers Green, Harlow, is no stranger to long distance walks having previously completed the Camino trail in Spain and the Inca trail through the Andes mountains in Peru.

For Heath, the challenge of a coast-to-coast walk is made even more daunting by the fact that three years ago he shattered his right ankle in a skiing accident. Since then he has undergone nine operations as part of his rehabilitation.

"I always love a challenge in business and in my personal life," said father-of-one Matt. "My goal is to raise as much money as possible for my chosen charities and I am very much looking forward to the walk which will challenge my capability."

Heath added: "As well as raising vital funds for charity, this challenge represents a substantial physical test for me personally."

"Following the accident I was lucky not to lose my foot. To be in a position to even consider participating, some three years and several operations later, provides all the motivation I need."

Volunteers help Midnight Walk to run smoothly

Marshals and registration team play vital role

Ken Morley

star@hertsessexnews.co.uk

THE public response to the news that the St Clare Hospice Midnight Walk will be returning to Harlow this summer has delighted event organisers.

Scores of people have already signed up for the neon-themed fundraiser which will be taking place on Saturday, July 2.

But it is not only walkers that are needed to light up the night. The event cannot take place without a team of volunteers whose support is crucial for the event to run smoothly.

There are plenty of opportunities for people who do not want to take part in the walk but want to help out on the night.

More than 60 marshals are needed along the route to direct walkers and offer encouragement while volunteers are also needed at the start of the event to help with the registration process and to hand out goody bags.

Hospice volunteer Tony Shattock regularly helps out as St Clare events and in the past has acted as a Midnight Walk marshal. "I loved being part of this community based event," he said.

"There is such a great atmosphere on the night, with lots of enthusiastic walkers getting into the spirit of the evening. As a marshal I was able to direct the walkers and give them lots of encouragement. There was a real sense of achievement at the end of the evening."

SENSE OF ACHIEVEMENT: St Clare Hospice volunteer Tony Shattock

Meanwhile, there are still a few early bird 2-for-£30 tickets left for people who want to take part in the walk. Standard ticket prices are £20 for adults (16 years and above) and £10 for children (11-15 years).

It will start from The Water Gardens car park in Harlow town centre at 11pm and walkers have a choice of two routes, one covering 5km and the other 10km.

Everyone taking part will receive a Midnight Walk t-shirt as well as a goody bag and, finisher's medal. There will also be an opportunity to take part in the professionally-led dance routine warm-ups before the start.

Organisers are hoping that more than 600 people will take part in the walk and raise vital funds for its work caring for people with terminal or life-limiting illnesses and providing support services for their families.

They have set themselves a target of £60,000, a sum which would fund the charity's inpatient unit for two weeks.

Hospice chief executive Tanya Curry said: "The Midnight Walk is all about showing our support to local families and their loved ones – literally lighting up the town in memory of all those we have cared for."

■ To offer your services as a Midnight Walk volunteer, contact event organiser, Jade Clarke on (01279) 773756 or email jade.clarke@stclarehospice.org.uk. To take part in the walk, register online at stclarehospice.org.uk/event/midnight-walk-2016, call (01279) 773756 or pick up a registration form from the hospice reception or one of its shops.

'I thought it was a joke' says winner of hospice's spring raffle

THE winner of St Clare Hospice's spring raffle has been presented with her first prize of £3,000.

Margaret Goldup, from Waltham Abbey, was handed a cheque by St Clare lottery manager Caz Lakey after her ticket was the first to be picked by hospice finance director Riyad Islam.

The second prize of 50-inch television was won by Trevor Search from Hatfield Heath and the third prize of a 15-inch laptop computer went to Susan Whitaker, of Harlow.

"I was shocked and delighted when I received the phone call to say I had won," said Mrs Goldup. "I have been a regular St Clare lottery player for the past few years and always enter the spring raffle but never dreamed I would win a big amount."

"I received the phone call the day before April Fool's Day and was convinced it was a practical joke."

More than 26,000 raffle tickets were sold, raising more than £27,000 for the hospice.

Court upholds depot ban on engine noise

Judges rule restriction is lawful and valid

Court Reporter

star@hertsexnews.co.uk

RESIDENTS plagued by noise from a bus and coach depot near their homes are looking forward to a quieter life after judges ruled the company responsible was in breach of planning regulations.

XPL Ltd has been running a bus and coach business from its site on the Harlow Business Park, off Elizabeth Way, since 2012.

However, the Court of Appeal was told a condition of planning permission for the site banned the company from carrying out repairs or maintenance work before 8am and after 6pm on weekdays, with tighter restrictions in force at the weekend including a total ban on Sundays.

The ban also covers any "industrial or commercial activities" on the site.

After residents complained to Harlow Council about noise from the site in 2014, XPL was served a notice ordering it to stop running engines outside the permitted hours.

The case ended up in the High Court when the company argued it had not breached the planning condition, but a judge ruled in favour of the council.

XPL then challenged that decision at the Court of Appeal, arguing it was an "operational requirement" that vehicles had to leave the depot well before 8am.

It said coach and bus engines had to be run for up to 10 minutes before they could be driven away in order to build up a certain level of air pressure.

The court was told that engine noise at the depot had been recorded as early as 5.30am and that it was loud enough to interfere with the sleep of local residents.

But dismissing the company's appeal, Lord Justice Lindblom said the planning condition was intentionally broad and that the starting up and revving of vehicle engines fell within the category of industrial or commercial activities.

Although the company was allowed to park vehicles in the depot at night, it meant bringing them to a halt and leaving them there with their engines switched off.

Describing the planning condition as a "lawful and valid restriction" on the company's use of the depot, the judge added: "It is not this court's task to assist XPL in overcoming the commercial predicament it says it faces if the breach of condition notice is upheld."

The judge, sitting with Lord Justice Jackson and Lady Justice King, concluded: "The council's breach of condition notice is lawful."

WINNERS: John Ball and rescue dog Darcy are pictured at Saturday's awards ceremony with actor Graham Cole who played PC Tony Stamp in the long-running TV series The Bill

Rescue team are top dog

AN Essex firefighter and his rescue dog have won a national award for bravery and outstanding achievement.

John Ball and border collie Darcy received the honour in recognition of the work they have done at home and overseas as part of UK International Search and Rescue team.

As well as attending incidents in Essex, John and Darcy have been involved in rescue missions following earthquakes in Sumatra in 2009 and Nepal last year.

The Service Dog Awards, which were presented at Ingatestone Hall on Saturday, are open to dog teams and individuals working in the Armed Forces, police, customs, prison and fire services.

John first teamed up with Darcy 11 years ago and their training began straight away. They were approved for UK and international search and rescue operations in 2006 and were the first UK dog team to pass the International Rescue Dog Organisation's mission readiness test.

"Darcy is a natural search and rescue dog," said John. "She is as keen to get to work now as she was when she was a puppy 11 years ago."

Post Office at Bush Fair will undergo major refurbishment

THE Post Office at Bush Fair, Harlow, will be open for an additional 30 hours a week following a major refurbishment which is due to take place next month.

The work to be carried out on the premises in Tilegate Road will result in the provision three modern counters, two of which will be screened and one open plan.

The office will be open from 9am to 5.30pm from Monday to Saturday.

There will also be a Post Office service point alongside the retail counter offering selected services which will be available from 6am to 6pm on Monday to Saturday and from 6am to 1pm on Sunday.

Shut

The premises will be shut for 11 days to allow the work to be carried out, closing at 12.30pm on Saturday, May 7 and reopening at 1pm on Saturday, May 18. During the period of the closure customers are advised to use branches at Potter Street and Staple Tye.

Post Office area manager Kevin Shepherd said: "We are making it easier for customers to get their cash, send and collect their mail and do their banking because we know how important these services are to local residents."

The changes are part of a major modernisation programme across the Post Office network designed to make it easier for customers to do business by increasing opening hours and introducing modern open plan environments.

RANGERS CLUB

A mission to find space dog Sam

THE hunt is on for a cuddly toy dog called Sam who has gone missing after being launched into space by a group of children from a school in northern England.

Sam was attached to a balloon filled with a special gas called helium which sent him soaring to more than 25 kilometres above the surface of the planet.

At that height the balloon, which was also fitted with tracking equipment and cameras, burst and fell back to Earth. It was later recovered in a field almost 50 miles from the launch site but there was no sign of Sam.

Now a reward is being offered to anyone who finds him and returns him safely.

"Sam's flight went beautifully, taking him to the edge of space," a spokesman told reporters. "But space travel is a risky business and Sam's freefall didn't quite go as planned."

The launch was part of an educational science project organised by Morecambe Bay Community Primary School and SentIntoSpace.

School headteacher Siobhan Collingwood said: "The children created history with the space launch and would love to see Sam the Dog safely returned with tales to tell of his adventures."

Doo-wah-Diddy-Diddy brings back the '60s

In his time, David Hamilton has presented Top of The Pops, compered for The Beatles and The Rolling Stones, hosted his own Radio 1 show and chalked up thousands of primetime TV credits.

In his most recent incarnation the man known as 'Diddy' is joined on stage by rock band The Fugitives and tuneless ladies The Tiffany Girls to blast out some 1950s and '60s numbers.

He will be at Harlow Playhouse on Friday, April 22 for his new show - David Hamilton's Rock 'n' Roll Back the Years.

Songs from Elvis Presley, Cliff Richard, Dusty Springfield, The Supremes, The Beatles and The Everly Brothers will play performed by the musicians with David sharing memories.

"It all started when I did a show at the London Palladium with The Fugitives and I thought they were a really good band," said David, 77.

"I suggested we did a tour and I imagined we would just do a couple of dates, but it grew and grew to become a 40-date tour. It has been going very well. The five-piece band and the girls are perfect to sing the songs. One girl can do a very good Cilla Black and the other is right for Dusty Springfield.

"The Fugitives singer Ash is able to be everyone from Roy Orbison to Cliff. It's an amazing show and a tribute to the times.

"I ask how many in an audience can remember the songs the first time around and most put their hands up - although I'm always surprised when we get young people who know every word to the Da Doo Ron Ron!"

The show is very personal to David, who has seen his contemporaries Terry Wogan and Ed Stewart pass away this year.

Both are remembered in the show while there is also a number to pay tribute to the late Cilla Black.

"We do a medley of songs and there is no chronological order, but it is in two halves. Usually for the finale I come onto stage and sing a couple of rock 'n' roll songs myself," said David.

"I'm reluctant to tell people this though as we are trying to get audiences not drive them away!" he laughed. "It was an idea just for me to sing something at the end and rock 'n' roll songs are quite easy to sing. By that time the audiences are in the aisles anyway and everyone is singing along.

"It is a show with a feel good factor."

"I also like to tell stories," he continued.

"There are so many from over the years. One I like is from when I was touring with The Rolling Stones and at the time I had a nice sports car.

"It was parked outside the venue and someone mistook my car for Mick Jagger's and scratched a message on the bonnet. For a week I was driving round with the words 'I Love You Mick' on my car! That's the kind of thing I will share."

David has now been broadcasting in some form for more than 50 years and his diverse range of credits includes a stint on Radio 2 and as the compere for Fulham Football Club (he still dreams they will one day win the Premier League).

His TV credits also include appearances with Benny Hill and Tommy Cooper while the nickname Diddy comes from his days of playing Ken Dodd's straight man in 1960s sitcoms.

"I have tried to diversity as much as I can in my time," he said.

"I have worked so long now that I've started saying to people that the first 50 years are the hardest. It was really exciting to get my own show on Radio 1 back in the 1970s, as in those days there were only a few stations - everyone listened to Radio 1.

"We were getting hits of 15 million listeners for every show and I think that shows how the world has changed.

"Thinking about it, I never really stopped, as every time I went on TV my agent would just get so many phone calls asking me to do openings and appearances."

"It would be very difficult if I was starting now," he added.

"There are so many DJs and a lot of them are not allowed to be personalities. When I was starting out you were expected and encouraged to be a personality.

"Older people always resent change, but it is how the world works. I am lucky there is such a market for nostalgia now and the show I am doing could have been done 20 or 40 years ago.

"Most modern music does not do a lot for me. I hear soul music now but I was around to remember Marvin Gaye so I will always be comparing it to that.

"I don't want to knock it too much, but the times have changed since when the whole family sat around the TV watching Top of the Pops wondering what would be No1."

David, who lives in Horsham, West Sussex, is still regularly involved with radio work and presents a show on The Wireless Radio, as well as the occasional slot on BBC Surrey.

He said: "I have been to Harlow before, but it was to a disco years ago."

■ David Hamilton's Rock 'n' Roll Back the Years will be performed at Harlow Playhouse on Friday, April 22.

Tickets start from £20 and can be booked from www.playhouse.harlow.com or on (01279) 431945.

Saturday, what a day! Oh Happy Days!

THURSDAY, Friday and Saturday will be Happy Days, as the classic TV sitcom is revived at Victoria Hall Theatre.

East Herts Operatic Society surprised shoppers in Church Langley Tesco to launch their show in the vegetable aisle with a flash mob earlier this month.

After some initial confusion, customers began to clap, cheer and take photos, getting into the spirit of the 1970s and '80s TV show set in a 1950s US diner.

While 40 years has passed since the heyday of Happy Days, The Fonz, Richie Cunningham and the gang are still fondly remembered and quoted regularly.

But apart from the iconic theme tune, Happy Days: The Musical is an entirely new composition with original songs and script. EHOS will perform from tonight (Thursday, April 21) to Saturday at 7.30pm.

Michelle Fisher, show director, said: "Everyone remembers watching Happy Days on TV, it was an institution.

"We've had a great time at rehearsals, rocking and rolling to all the retro music, we just can't wait for the audience to see it now."

Audiences will be whisked back to 1959 with the action taking place in Milwaukee, Wisconsin. The plot picks up in Arnold's Diner, which is under threat of closure.

With a roller coaster of 1950s-style songs, all specially written for the show, the gang attempt to come up with a plan to save the day.

Jo Hudson, from EHOS, said: "It is a really fun family show and you don't even have to have watched Happy Days to enjoy it as all the relationships are explained.

"It offers a nostalgia trip. People will recognise the theme music, but there are some really funny bits of dialogue and great individual performances.

"We do a musical at Victoria Hall Theatre every April and this year it felt right to do Happy Days."

■ East Herts Operatic Society will perform Happy Days: The Musical at Victoria Hall, Old Harlow, from Thursday April 21 to Saturday, April 23. All three shows begin at 7.30pm.

Anniversary classic

HAROLD Pinter's classic play The Birthday Party will be celebrated in a new production to be held at Harlow Playhouse.

London Classic Theatre will perform the 1957 play for three nights with one matinee next week.

The plot centres on a shabby boarding house where an elderly couple take care of a house-bound guest. The arrival of two enigmatic strangers adds a level of intrigue into their lives.

However, there are deadly consequences when an innocent birthday party turns into a deadly game of cat and mouse.

Michael Cabot, the director and producer who founded the company in 2000, confessed: "I am a bit of a Pinter nut.

"This is the fourth play of his I have done. I studied him at school and there was a teacher who inspired us all to open up to him. Since then I have been fascinated and whenever I get the chance to direct a Pinter play I will try and do one."

Critics scorned Pinter's second full-length play as too bizarre upon release and it initially bombed. Showing in 1958 at the venue then called the Lyric Opera House, in Hammersmith, The Birthday Party lasted only eight performances.

Michael commented: "When it was first performed it was considered so unusual and so different.

"People did not know what to make of it. But since we have started to understand he had a very particular writing style. Now audiences are much savvier to the subtleties.

"It takes an audience in a different direction and some of the things you see are not always explained. You never know why Goldberg and McCann come into the story: Pinter was keen not to tell audiences information and he kept things back."

Six years later a second tour at London's Grand Theatre was warmly received and The Birthday Party became a cult classic and stands as Pinter's most performed play. Many consider it to be his best.

Michael has also directed Pinter play Betrayal but is growing to love the absurdity The Birthday Party offers.

"It was a really ground-breaking play when it came out," he said. "It has got a mixture of comedy and drama but it has got a menacing side to it too.

"It is hard to tie it down to a genre. I would say it is a dark comedy.

"The world had changed by 1964 and people were more ready to receive it. A lot of plays around that time were beginning to break new ground. I am growing to love the quirks of the play."

The Playhouse performance is right in the middle of a draining list of tour dates that sees London Classic Theatre put on the show all over the country.

"We have been running now since February 17 and it has been very successful. It has a very strong cast who have been acquitting themselves every night.

"We have had really good audiences. We are never sure if people want to come and see it because it is an older play. I think some have been unnerved by it. It has a strong effect on people and some have come away not being sure what they have seen. They may be disconcerted.

"It is a play that raises more questions than answers. But it is also very funny and at times there are a lot of laughs.

"The response has been terrific."

He added: "It can be hard work for the cast being on the road all the time. In one week I know they had to be in four different locations. But they are enjoying coming to a range of different theatres, large and small. A new town offers a new experience"

Despite the play nearing its 60th birthday Michael said there is no need or desire to adapt the play too much.

"We have to stick to the script and not a single stage direction should be altered under instructions from Pinter before he died [in 2008]. But we would not want to play with it.

"We have set the play in the period. The set is not a conventional design but can be moved from theatre to theatre.

"We know Harlow Playhouse very well. They have been supporters of us for a long time and I have done around 10 shows. It is always a good venue to perform in."

The Birthday Party will be performed at Harlow Playhouse from Monday, April 25 to Wednesday, April 27. Performances take place at 7.30pm and there will be a 2.30pm matinee on Wednesday. Tickets cost from £15. For bookings and more information visit: <http://www.playhouseharlow.com>.

Stark future for Maisie

MUST WATCH TV

As Games Of Thrones returns for a sixth season, Maisie Williams, aka Arya Stark, talks to Ella Walker about her character's future, as well as her own, and how landing the role has given her the confidence to say no

AT the end of Game Of Thrones season five, not only had Jon Snow died (or had he?), orphaned Arya of House Stark had her sight taken from her as punishment for committing murder.

"This series, we see how much of a struggle that is for her," explains 18-year-old Maisie Williams, who has played spiky Arya in HBO's big-budget fantasy-drama since 2011, and returns to the character again for the upcoming sixth series.

"That's her main weapon, her main tool, that she's relied upon her whole life, and now it's been taken away from her."

"It's the most brutal way of teaching her to use her other senses, and it's a skill that's really, really hard for her to learn."

During filming, Bristol-born Williams had to wear opaque and pin-hole contact lenses, but blindness is just one of the trials Arya must now overcome.

"A lot of bad stuff happens this series; it's a very tough one. This year, we definitely see a crack in her strong exterior, we see her get totally broken down, totally stripped back," says the actress. "It's the first time you really question whether she's going to get back up again."

"She's always got a bit of a fire, and she's always got the upper hand and a little spark, but it's the first time we see her totally alone, questioning why she's still here."

So far, Arya has been driven onwards by her kill-list, which names people (including her last victim, Meryn Trant) who've hurt her or her family, but she is also in training to become "no one", a faceless man - aka a shape-shifting assassin.

"If she wants to become no one, she can never go back to her list. But then, does she really want to become no one? She says it a million times, but you have to question whether, deep down, she's cut out for that."

"It's almost half of her life that she's been on this search for revenge."

This is the first season of the hit show to depart from author George R.R. Martin's books - he's still writing them - which means, for fans and the cast, nothing is guaranteed any more.

"I wasn't nervous reading the scripts, but I definitely should have been," says Williams. "The whole time I've been so confident, like, 'It's fine, Arya's still alive in the books, don't worry', then I was sat there reading them and forgot that actually, everything is at risk."

Williams was just 12 when she landed the part of Arya so has spent her teenage years growing up in the full glare of Game Of Thrones mania.

"I've never really known anything else," she admits.

"People say, 'Do you feel you missed out on a normal teenage life?' But I feel like I very much lived as much of a normal teenage life as I could have."

"I try to live this crazy world as normally as I can," adds Williams with a grin.

She seems to have taken the show's impact in her stride, but don't think it's made her complacent.

"To be lucky enough to be cast in something so massive and vast for my first role, and that's opened so many doors for me (is amazing)," she begins, "but it's also taught me the lesson that this wasn't my 'break', because I've still got a lot to learn, work for and earn," she continues seriously.

"It's taught me that in this industry, you want to look back on your career at the end and think, 'I had fun', rather than, 'Oh, I'm playing the role that I've always wanted to' when you're 26, and being like, 'Now what?'"

"I don't want this to be a race. I want a long career, rather than a short burst, and I don't want to do all of the big things right now - I want to just play people that I want to play."

NEW CHALLENGES: Maisie Williams' character Arya is blind in season six of Game of Thrones; Maisie (left) at the new season premiere in Los Angeles

Hard-wired to fight for and promote equality, Williams recently told Entertainment Weekly that "we should stop calling feminists 'feminists' and start calling people who aren't feminist 'sexist' - and then everyone else is just a human. You are either a normal person or a sexist."

Last year she made a speech at the #LikeAGirl campaign Confidence Summit in New York, which aimed to inspire girls to achieve anything they want.

"That was amazing. It was so much fun to do something as myself, to show people what I'm passionate about. That's something I've found really important since I started acting, to make sure people know who Maisie is," says Williams.

"It's a lot more nerve-racking, though, definitely. When you're playing a character, it's fine because it's them, but when you've got to come out and be yourself, it's a bit scary to know that people are going to be judging you."

Williams, who also had a recurring role in Doctor Who as Viking immortal Ashildr – and won the Evening Standard Rising Star Award, along with being named the London Film Critics' Circle Young British/Irish Performer Of The Year for her performance in 2015's The Falling – is set to keep picking punchy parts.

"I don't think I realised how lucky I am, or was, when I started playing Arya – to play a girl who's so formed, real, believable, honest and imperfect," she muses. "You never really get – or never used to really get – characters like that. It's not until I'd gone on and read other projects and other films that I realised this is quite unique."

"And I'm very, very lucky to have been given that opportunity so young. Now I feel like I never want to take a character that I don't fully believe in, that I don't think is necessary."

"It's given me the confidence to say, 'No, I'm only going to play girls that I know and have seen and have met before', rather than this made-up perfect girl-next-door that doesn't actually exist."

Free-flowing portrait of a legend

Miles Ahead

DRAMA: (15) 100 minutes

Director: Don Cheadle

Starring: Don Cheadle, Ewan McGregor, Emayatzy Corinealdi, Michael Stuhlbarg, Lakeith Lee Stanfield, Christina Karis, Austin Lyon, Nina Siemlow

PROTEGEE. Pioneer. Heroin addict. That there were many shades to musician Miles Davis' life is a given. But what's not, is that a memorable life lived means a memorable biopic made.

Happily then, Hotel Rwanda and Boogie Nights actor Don Cheadle does a sterling job – or numerous jobs – as the co-writer, leading man and co-producer in Miles Ahead, his directorial debut about the late jazz trumpeter's life.

Like Davis' music and the mythology surrounding him, Miles Ahead follows its own rules, swerving the standard cradle-to-grave structure and instead offering up an elegant snapshot of Davis' life in the late 70s.

Set five years on from his self-induced exit from public life – and his subsequent pause in releasing new music – Miles Ahead sees him drug-addled and in pain from a chronic hip complaint.

Living alone in a chemically-induced stupor, he is taunted by memories of the breakdown of his marriage to muse and dancer Frances Taylor (Emayatzy Corinealdi) some years before. That the relationship was marred with his infidelity and abuse is neither glossed over nor glamourised, and the portrayal is all the better for it.

Equally plugging his thoughts are demands from his record label, who are desperate to bring the world another recording.

When wily journalist Dave Braden (Ewan McGregor) forces his way into Davis' house to get the scoop on a rumoured tape of his latest compositions, the mercurial musician is seething and angrily accompanies him to the record label which, according to Braden, arranged the chat.

There they meet unscrupulous music exec Harper Hamilton (Michael Stuhlbarg), who gets his mitts on the recording.

United though they are in the pursuit; buddy movie this ain't. If anything, the distance and cold resentment between Miles and Dave adds a pitch-perfect humour to the already whip-smart script.

Hot Legs - we love him so...

WITH blonde hair and a raspy voice Paul Metcalfe is the perfect singer to step into the shoes of Rod Stewart.

Charting the 1960s rise to fame through to his present legendary status Some Guys Have all the Luck: The Rod Stewart Story provides an authentic tribute to a musical great.

Backed by a full band Paul will blast out the hits at Harlow Playhouse on Saturday to offer audiences a complete, and less expensive, experience.

Split into two halves the show picks up with Rod's early 1960s career and includes numbers such as Handbags and Gladrags, In a Broken Dream and Stay With Me.

Paul really hits his stride in the second half, emulating the energy and showmanship Rod is famous for brining to the stage. As the show moves into the 1970s audiences can expect the likes of Sailing, Wear it Well, Some Guys Have all the Luck and Da Ya Think I'm Sexy?

The real Rod recently announced plans to build a five-a-side football pitch in his mansion on the outskirts of Harlow.

Paying tribute to his sporty side Paul will even kick signed footballs into the crowd when he is not throwing his mic stand around and wading into the audience.

Some Guys Have all the Luck: The Rod Stewart Story will be performed at Harlow Playhouse on Saturday, April 23 at 7.30pm. Tickets start at £17.50. For bookings and more information visit www.playhouseharlow.com or call (01279) 431945.

Sound of hard rock is alive!

TWO of the greatest rock bands of all time will be celebrated in a single show in Bishop's Stortford. Purple Zeppelin will return to the Rhodes later this month with more than two hours of classics from the back catalogue of Deep Purple and Led Zeppelin.

The four-piece can normally be found on the allotments or the martial arts gym, but every weekend a shared love of the bands unites them.

Vocalist John Barnet said: "All of us are very different characters, doing very different things."

"It brings us back together, doing what we most enjoy, and we try to communicate that to the audience."

He said there was an even split between members who rate Deep Purple or Zeppelin higher, which sometime bubbles to the surface during rehearsals.

"Everything stops and we have a vociferous debate about it," he added.

"If you don't like the songs, you can see it. If you are passionate, you will communicate that to the audience."

The band add some theatrics in among more than 30 classic songs, with costume changes, Ritchie Blackmore's lute, Jimmy Page's twin neck guitar and theremin, and a violin bow solo.

There is even a re-creation of the Deep Purple guitarist's infamous temperament.

"We have a bit of fun with it. Ritchie Blackmore was always very moody and our guitarist has a bit of frisson with me," John said.

It has earned them the title of tribute band of the year, an award voted by fans and journalists, in 2013, and last year and they featured in BBC documentary The Joy Of The Guitar Riff in 2014.

"It's a testament to the fact people are paying attention," John said.

"To be on the same programme as people like Brian May is a huge honour."

While much of their audience is composed of longstanding fans indulging in some nostalgia, the shows also help foster the next generation of fans.

John said: "People like their rock in that part of the country."

"I was brainwashed by my brother in the 1970s and we have people trying to recapture what they saw as a teenager."

"But bring younger members of the family."

"We have groups of teenagers at our shows who have just discovered heavy rock. If that helps keep heavy rock alive, then it's job done."

The show take place on Saturday, April 23 at 7.30pm.

Tickets cost £17 for adults and £15 for concessions.

Guerrilla without a list . . .

YOU may not believe this, but I promise you it's true. I find it really difficult to decide what to cook for dinner most nights.

However, many times I resolve to write meal plans and shopping lists and be organised, the first sign of any alterations to the working week or unexpected events that slide into the diary and it all goes out of the window.

So I can assure you that chef or not, I often get that familiar sinking feeling in the pit of my stomach when I hear those four little words from my children between 5pm and 6pm: "Mum, what's for dinner?"

It's easy to pretend that it's because I have a varied and changeable routine nowadays and I often work during evenings and weekends, which means I that even when I do plan meals for the week, I may not be there to deliver them.

But if I'm honest with myself, I can admit that I have never been very good at domestic planning. I always seem to find something more interesting to do. And even when I have a bout of trying to be super-organised, it doesn't tend to last long.

I'll write a weekly plan of meals, but I soon start to digress; I think I just don't like being told what to do, even when I have written the list (!) or I might just fancy something different to what's on the menu that night. Maybe I'm just a free spirit, man . . .

I'm also easily distracted [Ooh, shiny things...! Feat Ed].

The scheduled evening meal might be chilli con carne, but if I'm out and about and I see a particular fine marrow, I just have to get it. I'll justify it to myself because Jim and I both love marrow and king prawn curry and you can't always find it and then, of course, the meal planner is shot to pieces.

My business coach Leigh is always telling me to focus on the positive, ie the things I do well, rather than the things I don't.

So I am going to think about this particular trait I have in a different way from now on. What this all actually means is that I am good at 'guerrilla cooking', a phrase I have coined for

SAIRA

with Masterchef
semi-finalist Saira Hamilton raiding the cupboards and making a meal just from what there is in the house.

The previous week was just one of those weeks, when I had packed so much into seven days I didn't even have time to think about what we were going to eat, let alone shop for it (although I still managed to buy a marrow). And – I confess – some freezer meals did result.

But a new recipe that was a big hit also resulted from my crazy week, so there is always a silver lining. I had some leftover lamb mince and children that were getting 'hangry' (hungry + angry) so I wanted a one-pot dinner that could be ready in half an hour.

I decided on a spiced lamb flatbread sort of affair . . .

How to make Saira's spice lamb flatbread

For the bread (makes 2)
 200g strong white flour
 ½ sachet of fast action yeast
 ½ tsp dried coriander leaf
 ½ tsp salt
 1 tsp sugar
 2 tbsp olive oil
 125ml tepid water

For the topping
 200g lamb mince
 3 cloves garlic, crushed or chopped
 1-2 hot chillies
 handful of sultanas or dried apricots (optional)
 1-1½ tbsp Moroccan spice mix such as ras-el-hanout or baharat (or make your own with turmeric, paprika, cumin, coriander, chilli, pepper and salt)
 100g feta cheese
 chopped fresh coriander, greek yoghurt and wedge of lemon to serve

1. Mix all the dry bread ingredients in a bowl then add the olive oil and warm water and mix together well.

Bring together and knead well, with a little extra flour if the dough is very sticky. Knead for 5 minutes, then drizzle with olive oil and place the dough in a oven-proof bowl.

 2. Place the dough in the oven and set the oven to 200°C to pre-heat – the heat as the oven warms up will speed up the short proving process.

Take the dough out after 10 minutes.

3. Fry the lamb mince in a frying pan with the garlic, chillies, sultanas and spice mix.

Fry until the lamb is browned and all the spices are combined.
 4. Divide the dough into 2 pieces and roll or press out as flat as possible into a large oval shape.

Place on a lightly oiled baking tray. Spoon generous amounts of the lamb mixture onto the middle of the dough, leaving 2cm edge around the sides.

Crumble the feta cheese on top, then bake in the oven for 15-16 minutes until the dough is golden brown and the lamb is browned on top.

5. Serve with dollops of yoghurt, fresh coriander and a squeeze of lemon juice if you have it. There you go!

PROPERTY TALK >with NIGEL LEWIS

It's a Rotten place to live

IT'S 40 years since the punk-rock revolution in the steamy summer of 1976, when ripped jeans and safety pins hit the streets and outraged the establishment.

It also marks four decades since the release of the Sex Pistols' debut single, Anarchy in the UK, when original band members Johnny Rotten, Steve Jones, Paul Cook and Glen Matlock shocked TV interviewers and caused mayhem at concerts.

After a turbulent tour of the US, Rotten – real name John Lydon – left the band and announced their break-up in January 1978, holing up with fellow bandmates from his then newly-formed group Public Image Ltd at a home he'd just bought in London's Chelsea.

Lydon, now 60, owned the entire five-floor property, but sold it in 1981 when he moved to New York, and the building has since been divided up into two apartments, with a blue plaque outside to celebrate his time there.

The enfant terrible of punk reportedly hosted notorious parties at the house, inviting an eclectic mix of party guests including Bay City Rollers' Les McKeown, composer John Barry and former bandmate Sid Vicious.

Back then, the apartment on Gunter Grove had smoke-stained walls and a low-slung futon-style couch, but it has since had a makeover and would cost a punk fan £1,295 a week to rent.

Set over three floors with cream carpets and marble bathrooms, the maisonette has a spacious reception room with fish tank, dining area, three double bedrooms, two bathrooms and a private roof terrace with views over Chelsea.

At £4m they should be like a Tardis!

WHEN William Hartnell bowed out as Doctor Who in 1966 after a battle with the Cybermen at the South Pole, action was actually filmed in West London.

The eccentric time-traveller's final scenes where Hartnell and incomer Patrick Troughton were filmed transforming took place at Riverside Studios, which had witnessed dozens of The Doctor's travels around the universe.

After starting life as a Victorian factory for water pumps and sheet metal, the studios were home to the Triumph Film Company until the early 1950s when the BBC moved in, recording classics such as Hancock's Half Hour and the children's programme Play School.

When the Beeb left, they became an arts venue in the 1970s, hosted Channel 4's opening-night launch party in 1982 and during the 1990s, TV shows shot there included TFI Friday and CD:UK.

On the banks of the Thames near Hammersmith, Riverside Studios is now getting a big makeover, with new cinemas, theatres and art galleries due to open next year. There are also apartments on the upper floors which might appeal to Doctor Who fans with deep pockets.

The four Queen's Wharf penthouses start at £4million and have open-plan rooms separated by glass partitions and marble bathrooms. There are great views of the river from swanky roof terraces, with their own kitchen and bar area, sun deck and built-in jacuzzi.

The development also boasts 24-hour concierge, landscaped gardens and restaurant.

The Big Yin's bawdy former home

COMEDIAN and national treasure Billy Connolly is getting on with the business of being funny – despite battling Parkinson's disease.

The Big Yin is currently on our small screens riding the rails across 15 US states in Billy Connolly's Tracks Across America, joking about the trip.

The hard-working comic shows no sign of slowing down and is just about to embark on some stand-up dates in the US, usually mocking his misfortune in the shows.

Connolly, who got a Special Recognition award for his time in showbusiness at the National Television Awards earlier this year, has performed sellout stand-up gigs around the world, presented TV documentaries and appeared in numerous films, particularly winning plaudits for his turn in Mrs Brown alongside Dame Judi Dench.

When he's not on his travels, Connolly and wife, Pamela Stephenson, have homes in New York and Gozo.

But back in the 1990s they lived in this Victorian country house, opposite Windsor Forest, naming it GruntFuttock, after a double entendre-loving character voiced by Kenneth Williams in 1960s BBC radio comedy show Round The Horne.

Now back with the more sombre name of Forest Lodge, it's thought to have started life as a hunting lodge and comes with five bedrooms, three bathrooms and four reception rooms, which all have fireplaces and oak floors.

The large house has a good-sized garden with terrace and off-road parking. It's on the market for £1.995million.

A nation's grateful gift to the Nelsons

SPECTACULAR success in battle together with a scandalous private life raised Lord Horatio Nelson to godlike status in his lifetime – and he's still seen as one of our most enduring British heroes.

The naval commander is famous for his victories against the French during the Napoleonic Wars, as well as a love affair with Lady Emma Hamilton. After his death at the Battle of Trafalgar in 1805, the Government bought grade one listed Standynch Park and gave it to Nelson's surviving brother, the 1st Earl Nelson, and his heirs. Renamed Trafalgar Park to commemorate the great naval victory, it was home to the Nelson family for more than a century.

The sprawling Georgian country home in protected parkland near Salisbury, Wiltshire, has been used as a wedding venue in recent years and has also been used for TV shows and films including period drama Sense And Sensibility; Amazing Grace with Benedict Cumberbatch and the zombie blockbuster 28 Days Later, directed by Danny Boyle who spent six weeks filming there.

Businessman Michael Wade has spent the past 20 years restoring the 35,000sq/ft property, which is split into main house, south wing and north wing, and has almost 100 rooms, including a baroque hall, library and drawing room.

Up for sale at £12million, there are extensive cellars underneath the house, a heated swimming pool and tennis court in the gardens and it's even got its own private chapel – now disused – which has become a folly for walks and picnicking.

TESTED Mini Cooper JCW

The most powerful yet

Philip Shoulder

For MINI lovers who want something even faster than the standard Cooper S, there's the MINI John Cooper Works.

Now in its second generation, this latest version can lay claim to being the most powerful production MINI ever made.

Extensive internal reworking of the 2.0-litre four-cylinder turbocharged motor has raised power from an already decent 192 PS in the standard Cooper to an impressive 231 PS.

The unique look of the new MINI John Cooper Works is the result of practical considerations as much as aesthetics and make this high performance model stand out from its siblings.

Enlarged front air intakes and an additional air inlet in the near-side outer area of the front apron where the fog lights would normally be housed have been added for extra cooling, while the red Brembo sports brakes can be seen between the spokes of the John Cooper Works 17-inch alloy wheels.

Aerodynamic additions to the MINI John Cooper Works include new ducting elements in the front apron, bespoke side sills, a rear apron with flaps and a diffuser containing the wide twin tailpipes of the sports exhaust system, and a rear spoiler. LED headlamps and LED daytime running lights come as standard.

On the road the MINI JCW feels considerably quicker than the standard Cooper S, thanks to the extra power and torque. Acceleration from 0-62 mph takes just 6.3 seconds with the six-speed manual transmission – an improvement of 0.2 seconds over the previous JCW model – and an even more rapid 6.1 seconds with the optional six-speed Steptronic sports automatic gearbox, which includes Launch Control. In use this proves easy and efficient to operate, whizzing through the gears with deft precision and smoothness.

Despite 231 PS at the front wheels, torque steer is well contained and the car encourages spirited driving, with an engaging rorty soundtrack and pops and crackles coming from the exhaust on the over run. For a performance model, emissions are respectable too, with the Steptronic version emitting 133g/km of CO2 versus the manual versions 155g/km.

The new MINI John Cooper Works takes the renowned go-kart agility which has always been a MINI hallmark to an even higher level, thanks to firmer suspension, a revised front axle and multi-link rear axle and uprated Brembo brakes. The result is a much more engaging drive, although one small criticism is that the sharp and direct steering could do with a touch more feel.

Inside the cabin of the new Works you'll immediately notice the new sport bucket seats with integrated headrests in Carbon Black Dinamica/fabric or optionally, Carbon Black Dinamica leather. These are complemented by the John Cooper Works-logged door sills, leather John Cooper Works multi-function steering wheel and gear selector for automatic transmission, both featuring Chili red stitching, stainless steel pedals and footrest.

Other standard equipment includes an engine scoop in body colour, a distinctive chrome-plated fuel-filler cap linked to the central locking system, two-way steering column adjustment, air conditioning, heated mirrors and windscreen washer jets, DAB radio, Bluetooth mobile phone connectivity and cruise control with automatic braking on downhill gradients and Curve

Speed Limiter.

Of course, like all MINIs, there are still a number of ways to customise the feel of your car. A nice touch on the JCW is the option of sports instrumentation – three classic circular dials which provide useful information to drivers who intend to enjoy track days. There are oil pressure and boost pressure displays plus a chronometer with stopwatch.

Verdict: This latest incarnation of the MINI Cooper John Cooper Works builds on the strengths of its highly capable predecessor. With stronger performance, sharper handling and more distinctive features than the standard Cooper S, it easily remains the most desirable MINI hatch model.

Claire Petulengro YOUR STARS WITH

ARIES MARCH 21 - APRIL 20
There is so much you can do to repair broken relationships with close ones this week. Try to take your own advice and not that of well meaning, but mistaken friends. An invite you receive which would involve travel on your part is the key to your destiny, so make sure you accept, especially if it is close to water. Ring now to hear who still has strong feelings for you.

TAURUS APRIL 21 - MAY 21
This week, you get to find out that you have the backing of several faces who you thought were no longer interested in what happened to you. How wrong you were. Could you possibly let that hard exterior drop for a day or two so that you can enjoy the love and support which is on offer? Financial meetings planned for Thursday or Friday are set to go in your favour. Contracts signed this week bring luck and fortune. Ring now so we can look deeper into your future.
FOR WEEKLY AND MONTHLY READINGS CALL 0911 8532 349 65p per minute

GEMINI MAY 22 - JUNE 21
You have a really great work ethic at the moment and those with the power will be only too willing to offer you opportunity. Someone who was not free, will be by the time this week is over, which could well move the goalposts as to how you see your future. News from far away makes you see someone you know in a completely different light. Ring now to enjoy life and love to the full.
FOR WEEKLY AND MONTHLY READINGS CALL 0911 8532 350 65p per minute

CANCER JUNE 22 - JULY 22
When did you last take some time out for yourself and make you a priority? I think it has been a while my friend. Watch out for legal dealings getting out of control. Make sure there are not too many people involved in deciding what happens. Take control before Thursday. Give me a ring to hear how the close ones in your life are about to pleasantly surprise you.
FOR WEEKLY AND MONTHLY READINGS CALL 0911 8532 351 65p per minute

LEO JULY 23 - AUGUST 23
You have said some things you now regret and yet you continue to hurt those you love. As they say, attack is the best form of defence, but it is time now for this battle to come to a close. Those who know you well are willing to wipe the slate clean if you ask them. Laurens' cheeky offers are worthy of serious consideration. Ring me now so I can tell you about April in full detail.
FOR WEEKLY AND MONTHLY READINGS CALL 0911 8532 352 65p per minute

VIRGO AUGUST 24 - SEPTEMBER 22
Mars and Pluto make it hard for you to make true sense of anything that is going on and you even begin to question the very things you have come to rely on in life. Give yourself time to breathe and recognise that it may be time for you to give yourself a break. Aries help you to get back on an even keel from Tuesday, so seek them out. Ring now to hear how travel and love may well.
FOR WEEKLY AND MONTHLY READINGS CALL 0911 8532 353 65p per minute

LIBRA SEPTEMBER 23 - OCTOBER 23
I know you have been finding it hard to keep all the plates spinning in your life, but those who know you well and are close to you think you have done a wonderful job. Try not to make commitments and promises you know you have no intention of keeping. You'll only cause an unnecessary atmosphere if you do. Ring now to hear why you can afford to ask for more in love.
FOR WEEKLY AND MONTHLY READINGS CALL 0911 8532 354 65p per minute

SCORPIO OCTOBER 24 - NOVEMBER 21
This week sees you catching up on much gossip and speculation, but it really is a case of you believing nothing of what you hear and only half of what you see, as many of the signs really are talking for the sake of it. A new attraction has the potential to be so much more. Take it slowly though, as this will be a firm base that needs building upon. Ring now for a deeper look into your future.
FOR WEEKLY AND MONTHLY READINGS CALL 0911 8532 355 65p per minute

SAGITTARIUS NOVEMBER 22 - DECEMBER 20
Try not to tell too many people what has transpired in recent weeks, or you will only add further speculation to the melting pot. What is required now is a cooling off period so that all those involved can collect their thoughts and work out where they stand and how they feel. Give them this and their decisions should prove most advantageous. Ring now to tap into your subconscious.
FOR WEEKLY AND MONTHLY READINGS CALL 0911 8532 356 65p per minute

CAPRICORN DECEMBER 21 - JANUARY 20
I know it is never easy to be wrong, but if you owe an apology, then make it before this week is over or others may withdraw the chance for you to make it at all. A new relationship in your circle breaks the normal cycle and makes you realise how acting from the heart can work for many. Will it work for you? That depends how honest you're willing to be! Ring now for insight.
FOR WEEKLY AND MONTHLY READINGS CALL 0911 8532 357 65p per minute

AQUARIUS JANUARY 21 - FEBRUARY 19
I know you feel as if you are not getting anywhere with all of the hard work you have put into life, but you are wrong. Conversations you have from Thursday should prove this to you. A great week to enter new relationships as you'll be opening up and showing your vulnerable side, something you are not always able to do. Call now to talk about those mixed emotions you're experiencing.
FOR WEEKLY AND MONTHLY READINGS CALL 0911 8532 358 65p per minute

PISCES FEBRUARY 20 - MARCH 20
Do you really feel so strongly about what's occurred, or are you just putting on an act? I don't think you or others will know until Mercury calms down and helps you to separate fact from fiction. A new influence in the family is a good thing, so try not to be too distant from them. This is a friendship you'll want on your side. Ring now to hear how Venus pushes you to tell tales.

Conservatories

Turn your conservatory into an all year round living space

Our replacement roof solution is a traditional roof construction method for your conservatory which replaces the existing glass/acrylic roof with a bespoke insulated, timber framed, tiled roof.

This helps ensure a more comfortable room temperature in Summer whilst still enjoying the warmth a conservatory brings, and increases the temperature in Winter, enabling an enjoyable environment all year round. The new roof will also reduce glare and noise.

A Summit Conservatory Roof encourages your conservatory to become a popular area of the home, as an additional room and relaxing living space, saving you money on energy bills... and no more cleaning that glass or acrylic!

Focused Westley bats away all England talk

Tom is just concentrating on racking up the runs

by Matt Harris

star-sport@hertsessexnews.co.uk

TOM WESTLEY says he is not paying any attention to the talk of an England call-up after making an impressive start to the season with the bat for Essex.

The 27-year-old scored centuries in the pre-season friendly against Cambridge MCCU and in the opening Specsavers County Championship Division Two match of the season at home to Gloucestershire, before following that up with the top score of 86 in Essex's first innings at Sussex in this week's game.

Westley was part of the England Lions one-day squad that played Pakistan A over the winter and was a member of the MCC squad which took on county championship champions Yorkshire in the United Arab Emirates in March.

Many, including England captain and Essex team-mates Alastair Cook, and Harlow Star columnist Nick Browne, have recognised his England potential and he has been touted as a contender to fill the number three spot for the Test team, which was occupied by Nick Compton during the tour of South Africa.

Nice

But Westley says he is just concentrating on getting the runs, adding: "It's nice to be spoken about in those terms.

"The Lions, I suppose, is a pool of 25 to 30 players that are being spoken about, but I haven't given it too much thought.

"I just want to score as many runs as I can.

"Alastair said to all the county players before the season began that there are a few spots available. There are some brilliant batters out there, it just about being in the right place at the right time.

"From my own point of view it's always nice to start the season with a century, it gives you a good confidence boost."

As well as his batting, Westley is hoping he can push on with his bowling this season, having taken two wickets for a meagre 20 runs in his ten overs in Sussex's first innings at Hove.

His off-spin led to a selection for the England Performance Programme for a batting and spin camp in Sri Lanka in the winter of 2014, where he joined James Vince, Jason Roy and Sam Billings, broken through to the senior set-up over the past 12 months.

However, Westley feels he is not the only spin option for the four-day game at Essex, saying: "It's always nice to bowl and I've got a bit of competition as Dan Lawrence is developing into a fine young off-spinner.

"We've probably been lacking a four-day spinner and Ryan [ten Doeschate, four day captain] has said that he wants to bowl me more than what James [Poster, previous captain] did.

"I've spoken to Ravi [Bopara, one-day skipper] and he's pretty keen to use spin as an option."

Gloucestershire was the first match Westley played in as vice-captain after taking up the role over the winter, and he feels the responsibility may have added to his batting.

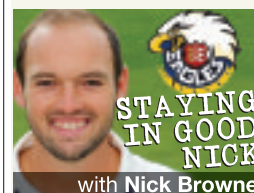

"Not a huge amount has changed as I've got a great relationship with Ryan and he leans on me when he feels he needs to," revealed Westley. "The extra responsibility might have shown in my batting and need to perform. I'm enjoying it and long may that continue.

"I'm also bit older, we've got some brilliant, talented individuals at the club and there is competition for places.

"But batting in the top three there is that extra responsibility anyway."

STAYING IN GOOD NICK
with Nick Browne

James Taylor retiring does make you think how lucky we are

WE WERE really delighted with the way that we played against Gloucestershire.

The bowling especially was brilliant on a decent wicket and the innings from Tom Westley and Alastair Cook set us up.

It was nice personally to get a little 50 not out to end the game as well.

In the first innings I got out early, but anything can happen as an opener.

You can get a good ball, so there are times when you aren't going to get big scores, but at times you do.

It was nice to get us over the line though and the atmosphere in the dressing room after the game was brilliant.

The way Tom Westley has started the season, he has been unbelievable.

His innings against Gloucestershire was great and in the first innings at Sussex it was really tough, but he was brilliant again. He should be putting his name in for the England selection now.

There are a few places up for grabs in the national side and some other names mentioned but there is no doubt that he could be playing Test cricket now.

I think he would thrive at that level and his game now is set up to play at the top level.

If he got selected today then I would have no worries in the fact that he would do a good job for England.

It was really sad to hear about the retirement of James Taylor.

I didn't know him personally and I only played against him a couple of times, but from what I have heard he was an amazing professional and the fittest guy in the England set-up.

Having left no stone unturned to get into Test cricket, it was so sad that he had to quit at such a young age.

He scored so many runs and could have been an England regular for a long time, it left the whole cricket world shocked by it.

What it does highlight is how lucky we are to be playing cricket, it is a dream. You have to enjoy every day.

Win for Clapton

LUKE BREWING grabbed a hat-trick of tries as Epping Upper Clapton wrapped up their RFU London Division Three North East season with a 31-10 home win over May & Baker.

Other try scorers were Nick Tower and Archie Unstead.

Tower added the successful conversions for Clapton who have been promoted to Division Two North East after finishing second.

Hawks are champs

HARLOW Hawks sealed the U11 Junior Central Venue League (JCVL) title in the final match of the season on Sunday.

The competition was held at Mark Hall Sport Centre.

Hawks had two teams in the JCVL and the Hawks Red team were crowned champions.

Teams from Cambridge, Stevenage, Clacton, Thurrock, Braintree and Brentwood competed.

Going into the final event it was Hawks Red (pictured left) were ahead of two Brentwood

Leopards teams (White and Black respectively) and knowing that as long as they won at least two out of their three games they would win the league.

All of the top three teams won their final games so the top three finished in the same positions so Hawks Red finished off another successful year as the U11 JCVL champions.

They only lost once, to Leopards Whites, which was near the start of the season.

Hawks White finished sixth in the final standings.

Future's looking Up for new-look Rams

Youngsters shine as win over rivals ends season well

THE Rams might have missed out on promotion this season, but director of rugby Lee Harron's policy of putting faith in youth is certainly paying off.

The 27-20 home victory over Upminster on Saturday secured fourth spot in Harlow's final match in Division Three North East.

With the club moving to its state-of-the-art new site for next season, the future looks very bright for the club, hoping this switch and the vast opportunities it offers can attract more players of all ages.

Harron is hoping next season will see the start of a rise as Harlow look to return to its rightful spot in the upper echelons of the London and South East League, but says that will only come with hard work, commitment and desire.

"We have consistently finished there or thereabouts for the last few years," said Harron.

"With us it's all about training and playing together as a squad for a prolonged period to achieve the next level.

"A full summer of training from everyone is something that we have not had for some time.

"Regular attendance at training throughout the season and a commitment to all games for the entirety of the campaign [is what is required].

"This, we believe, will achieve that goal of promotion should the players genuinely and honestly want that as a squad."

Once the chance of promotion this season was gone, the Rams looked to give the chance to its younger players.

Harron has seen the club bring in the young Stalley brothers,

Ross, Scott and Dale, who cemented first team spots this term, while James Clarke has also stepped up this term.

Flanker Charlie Robinson, lock

Dan Evans and Jack Christy have more recently staked their claim for the first team.

Harron explained: "During this time a number of the younger players started to put their hands up for selection.

"Charlie Robinson grabbed his opportunities with both hands, is developing well and increasing the competition for places.

"James Clarke has made himself available on a more regular basis, has been performing well and also increasing the competition for places.

"Dan Evans has settled in well, is genuine, honest and a hard-working young man.

"Jack Christy is maturing very well, is keen to listen and learn and should develop into a fine player.

"The Stalleys are all very keen, have settled well into the team and have all shown an excellent level of commitment in different ways.

"Once it was clear that promotion was no longer viable we put a policy in place to ensure we had a better attendance at training and greater transparency with selection."

This clearly paid off in the win over Upminster, as the Rams fought back from conceding an 11th-minute unconverted try.

Missed

Harlow levelled the score when Dale Stalley scored a try.

Fly-half Danny Smith missed the conversion.

Upminster slotted over a penalty on 25 minutes.

The visitors made it 13-5 with a try after the break.

Scott Stalley narrowed the gap with an unconverted try.

A try from Harlow skipper Shaun Roberts was converted by Smith to put Harlow in front (17-13).

Ross Stalley then became the third Stalley brother to score.

Despite the missed conversion, Harlow now led 22-13.

Upminster then scored a converted try to put the game back in the balance.

But Rob Mackie's try made the points safe for the Rams.

Late goal setback for Hawks

Ryman North

A LATE, late consolation goal for Great Wakering Rovers could have ramifications if Harlow Town miss out on second spot in Ryman North on goal difference.

Thurrock's stoppage-time winner from the penalty spot against Waltham Abbey gave them the upper hand in the race for second, and the possible opportunity of two home matches in the play-offs - semi-final and final.

Just one goal separates Thurrock and Harlow, with the two teams neck and neck on 93 points.

The Hawks go to champions AFC Sudbury, while Thurrock visit close neighbours Aveley, languishing in mid-table.

"We said at half-time we wanted to try and keep a clean sheet. It was disappointing to concede that late goal," said Chapman.

"We were in total control from start to finish. We needed to win to cement third place and we knew we would be at home in the semi-final. It was a really good performance."

Harlow took the lead on 25 minutes through Joe Benjamin.

His 'shot' might have been a cross, but it deceived the Wakering keeper at his back post and went in.

Harlow made it 2-0 just two minutes later.

A cross from Jared Small was nudged into his own net by Ellis Sands.

Hawks substitute Lewis Perkins ran through and slotted past the advancing Rovers keeper for 3-0 on 76 minutes.

Wakering pulled one back after beating the offside trap, an excellent chip from Dan Gilchrist on 84 minutes.

Chapman is unsure if he will rest players at Sudbury on Saturday with the play-offs in mind.

"They are finishing the season at home as champions. They are going to want to get a win," he said.

"I have a decision to make on what side I play as we are looking at the play-offs now.

"We will prepare ourselves with whatever side we put out there."

Winger Junior Dadson is set to return from a muscle injury.

"On Thursday at training it wasn't quite right. We don't feel at this stage we want to push him. We want to make sure he is right for the play-offs. Hopefully he will play a part at Sudbury next Saturday," added Chapman.

Reading Rockets star is ready for blast off

Teen who started at Hawks in first team breakthrough

by Alan Scott

alan.scott@hertssexnews.co.uk

FORMER St Mark's School student Ali Sbai is about to play in the biggest match of his basketball career when his Reading Rockets side meet Manchester Magic in the EBL Division One play-off final on Sunday.

The Harlow youngster, who plays at guard, first came to prominence playing for the youth teams at Harlow Hawks and admits he owes a huge debt to head coach Shab Niaz, who helped him become a better player when he was younger.

Ali, 18, has been making rapid progress in the English National League since he started studying at the prestigious John Madejski Academy and is targeting a spell playing in either the USA or Europe in the near future.

Great

Ali, who lives on the Church Langley estate in Harlow, broke into the first team at Reading this season and has made more than a dozen appearances.

Having beaten Manchester earlier in the season, Ali believes the Rockets have a great chance of following up their play-off semi-final victory over Essex Leopards and winning the final.

He said: "We beat Manchester by six just before the play-offs. We also beat the Derby Trailblazers, who finished second in the league,

BREAKTHROUGH: Ali Sbai is targeting a spell abroad after breaking into the Reading Rockets first team by three points in the last league game. I got a lot of game time in that match.

"We have a really good chance of winning in Manchester."

The 18-year-old's next step is to earn a scholarship to study at an American college, where the top players in the world play.

"That's my goal. I want to go to America, everybody dreams of playing basketball in America. But the way I play suits the European style.

"If I got the chance to go to America I will take it. I have had offers to play in Italy."

Ali's father Atik played the sport in Africa before emigrating to this country.

He persuaded his son to take up the sport and Ali has fond memories of his time at the old Harlow Sportcentre being coached by Niaz when he was ten.

"Shab did help me a lot with my skills but I was tough to coach – I didn't listen. But I would practice at home some of the skills that Shab had shown me."

He progressed to Ware Rebels before earning a place at the prestigious John Madejski Academy in Reading, where his form and talent took him through the ranks at the Reading Rockets.

"The U18 coach, Pedro Rosado, has helped me a lot. Manuel [Pena Garces, the Rockets' head coach] has helped me with the mental side of my game.

"This time last year I was not anywhere near where I am now," said Ali.

Fresh from a seven-team tournament at Easter in France when he took on the England U18 side, as well as teams from Paris and Madagascar, Reading won two out of seven matches, losing to England, but Ali picked up crucial experience which will stand him in good stead for next season, his last at the Berkshire club.

His father Atik explained: "He hopes to have another year at Reading. After that he hopes to go to university in America or in Europe. He has got a lot of offers now."

As part of his studies at the John Madejski Academy, he will complete a qualification in sports science next year before making a decision on whether to try his luck in America or head into continental Europe and already has firm offers from top basketball clubs in Italy.

Essex Cup heartache for Rams Play-off last eight loss

THERE was heartbreak for Harlow as they missed out in the final of the Essex County Cup.

The Rams lost won a trophy in 1995 when they secured the silverware in the Eastern Counties Cup.

They were very much the underdogs as they took on London Division Two North East side Romford & Gidea Park in the final under floodlights at Thurrock Rugby Club on last Wednesday last week.

The Rams had sealed their spot with a tremendous semi-final victory at London Division Three North East rivals May & Baker the previous week.

Harlow took an early lead in the final with an unconverted try from out wide from Ross Stalley.

But Romford showed the gulf in divisions with two converted tries to take a commanding 14-5 lead courtesy of two converted tries.

They then added a further try but the conversion was missed.

The Rams were 19-5 down at the break, but fought back and scored a try after a fantastic line-out move early in the second half ended in a try for powerful number eight Kain Claridge.

But a controversial penalty try made it 26-10 to put the match beyond Harlow.

Romford wrapped up the scoring with a converted try under the posts late on to secure the silverware after a 33-10 win.

HARLOW Hawks lost 66-49 in the Herts Basketball League Division One play-off quarter-final.

Russ Allan and Rimantas Norkelinas posted most of the points early on against Herts Warriors.

Hawks were down by eight at the end of the first quarter.

Harlow conceded six early points in the first two minutes of the second quarter, before an 11-0 run cut the deficit.

Superb performances from Richard Whytock and Norkelinas got the Hawks back into the game.

But an 11-2 run put the Warriors 36-27 up.

Hawks hit 12 points in the third quarter with baskets from Norkelinas, Shab Niaz, Allan and Tom White but the hosts remained ahead.

Despite Allan's best efforts Hawks were out-scored as the Warriors won by 17 points.

THIRD TIME LUCKY

Boss targets play-off joy after two years of heartache

by Alan Scott

alan.scott@hertsessexnews.co.uk

THE Hawks can be the title party-poopers on Saturday at champions AFC Sudbury – but it is next Wednesday which is far more important for boss Danny Chapman.

Harlow are guaranteed a home match in the play-off semi-final, which will be against either Cray Wanderers or AFC Hornchurch.

But they are likely to need to win at Sudbury and hope second-placed Thurrock draw or lose their final game away to Thurrock to finish in the top two – or score two more goals than their Essex rivals manage.

This would give Harlow home games in both the semi-final and final, should they get there.

In order to do that they will have to avoid the disaster of last year, when they lost in the semi-final against a Thurrock side who had finished an incredible 19 points below them in the table.

The previous year Harlow lost in the play-off final at Witham Town.

Miserable

Chapman says his side are determined to end their miserable run in play-offs and does not care who they face in the season finale.

"I don't fear anyone. We have to concentrate on ourselves. We are capable of beating anyone," he said.

"The play-off games are like cup matches. I don't think you can say the league results can count for anything.

"I think last year's play-off [a heavy home defeat to Thurrock in the play-off semi-final] shows you that.

"You have to forget about form and results. It means nothing. On our day we are capable of beating anyone."

There has been speculation that potential play-off opponents Cray have been paying one of their strikers a substantial weekly sum.

However, Chapman laughs off money talk. "The money I have heard that we are paying our players is laughable. I am not one to speculate on what they are paying," he said.

One of the key factors in the play-offs could be the form of goalkeeper David Hughes.

In previous seasons, goalkeepers have been a bit hit and miss for Hawks.

Even earlier this season Harlow had the son of former Spurs favourite Steffen Freund, Niklas Freund, in goal.

A good shot-stopper, but you always felt he had a mistake or two in him.

That has changed with the arrival of former Enfield Town, East Thurrock and Thurrock custodian Hughes.

He was at the heart of Harlow's record-breaking feat of 12 league successive wins earlier this year, beating the run established in the 1978-79 season.

Harlow assistant Spencer Knight paid tribute to Hughes (pictured right), signed in November. He has kept eight clean sheets during that time.

Knight said: "Hughes has made a big difference. Niklas was a good goalkeeper but made a few mistakes and lost us points.

"Dave is a top goalkeeper. He inspires confidence in the back four.

"He has saved us a lot of points. He is a good lad and we are hoping to tie him up on a longer contract."

Harlow wrapped up their league campaign at home with a 3-1 victory against Great Wakering Rovers on Saturday.

Duo in British Olympic trials

NEW Harlow Penguins recruit Georgie Pryor plus experienced swimmer Karl Batorski competed in the 2016 British Swimming Championships at Glasgow's Tollcross Commonwealth Games pool.

The event also doubled up as a Great Britain selection meet for the Rio 2016 Olympics.

Sunday saw Pryor (pictured) take to the pool in the women's 100m butterfly.

Having not had the best preparation, there was an element of trepidation for Pryor, who was in lane four and up against Siobhan-Marie O'Connor, one of the UK's top Olympic prospects. However, Pryor flew down the first length in a split of 28.08sec and finished in 1min 01.93sec.

This was an outstanding time that qualified Pryor for the 'Tokyo' final in the evening, a final which recognises swimmers with the potential to compete in the 2020 Tokyo Olympics. She swam a brilliant 1:01.62 to finish fifth.

Batorski was competing on Friday morning and swam in the 100m butterfly and was seeded in the penultimate heat.

He found himself competing in the same race as James Guy, the overall winner and Adam Barrett, two leading contenders for the Olympic places.

Not fazed by the quality of the opposition, Batorski split 25.46 for the first 50 before finishing in 55.71.

"For Karl to compete at this level is an amazing achievement, the amount of training time he has available to him at Harlow is a fraction of what is available to the likes of James Guy, who will be in the water for four to five hours a day," said Penguins head coach Martin Stringer.
